

Bio: Lance T. Walker, Career Coach

With over 18 years' experience in marketing and project management and ten years' experience in Internet business consulting, Lance provides his coaching clients with expert, professional guidance and training. He has developed a reputation for providing powerful, creative solutions for the business and career development needs of military members, teenage students, career changers, and small business owners from coast to coast.

A truly success-oriented Renaissance man, Lance holds certifications in electronics engineering, multimedia technology, computer networking, web development, technical writing, project management, sales training, public speaking, and marketing consulting. He credits his varied experiences with helping to make it possible for him to learn, grow, and interact effectively with people of many diverse backgrounds while achieving goals with confidence.

His real-world experience includes living and working as a Silicon Valley insider during the dot-com heyday of 1998-2001. He is a decorated U.S. Air Force veteran who now travels frequently from his home in the Tampa Bay area, sharing his unique insights and perspective with enthusiastic audiences nationwide.

A noted author and e-business consultant, Lance T. Walker is also the Managing Director for the SkyVault™ Group (www.skyvaultgroup.com), which specializes in helping people discover what they are meant to do, then assisting them with tools and information for finding the way forward and fulfilling that purpose. Lance believes strongly in every American's right to self-determination, and works to facilitate that process with each client. He is available for coaching requests via his web site, TheExperienceShows.com.

To contact Lance T. Walker for an interview or speaking engagement:

Phone: 727-238-7811 / Fax: 425-699-4836

Email: speaker@lancetwalker.com